This is most of the information I used- I do my best to account for all of the resources I come across or have incorporated into the episode. If there is more information that you would like to see added to this list- Let me know and email me thelandscape nerd@gmail.com.

In this episode we are speaking with Chris Landau, principal of Landau Design + Technology. He is an artist who has found himself immersed in the world of landscape Architecture. In addition to computational design and visualization, he firm developed an innovative design tool called LandKit. It is an Algorithmic design tool that helps improve landscape designers' workflows and assist in complex design situations. Together we discuss how we integrate technology into the design process, the importance of small risks, and how improving processes gives designers more time to be themselves, which is ultimately great for the profession.

The newest version of LandKit (1.1) is available now!
